YARD

King Henry I

According to tradition, a yard measured on King Henry I of England became the standard yard used today.

It was the distance from his nose to the middle fingertip of his extended arm.

Other measures derived from physical activity such as pace, league (distance = 1 hour's walking), acre (amount plowed in a day, and a feeding. (the distance between elbow and index fingertip, used to measure out cloth.) (It ranged from 0.513
